Staff meeting.

Ted Tannenwald and Jack Ohly came to see me regarding a paper Tannenwald gave me last week setting forth the delays and deferments in end item deliveries to NATO countries. We talked at considerable length about this subject, and it was decided I should meet with Averell upon his return next week before taking it up with Bob Lovett.

We had a meeting this afternoon with the Secretary and Jack McCloy, who has just arrived, about the situation in Germany, which on the whole is fairly satisfactory.

This was followed by a meeting on Iran, where the situation is far from being satisfactory.

I talked to Ed Martin about the French complaints over the scope of our off-shore procurement program. The money is simply not available to satisfy their demands even if it were advisable to do so.

We had a meeting in the Secretary's office about ANZUS, i.e., the conference to take place in Honolulu between the United States, Australian, and New Zealand Foreign Ministers.

Later, McCloy came back and talked of the possibilities of ratification of the EDC treaty and the contractual agreements. He seemed
